Positioning Statement

The ADS Advisors builds the working bridge between governments, institutions and businesses across India and Japan.

Where diplomacy opens the door, we make sure the right people walk through it, and stay in the room long enough for something real to happen.

What We Do

Government to Government

We work alongside ministries, prefectures and diplomatic missions to convert bilateral goodwill into structured, on-ground engagement, from protocol and delegation logistics to the follow-through that keeps a relationship alive after the visit ends.

Government to Institutions

We connect universities and academic institutions directly with visiting government delegations and industry leaders, creating a platform where accreditation, research strength and placement ambition meet the people who can act on them.

Business to Business

We give companies entering or expanding across the India-Japan corridor direct access to counterparts, talent pipelines and policy stakeholders, cutting through years of cold outreach in a matter of days.

Flagship Programme

Currently convening: the Indo-Japan Delegation Engagement Programme

A high-level Japanese delegation of nearly 200 CEOs, senior bureaucrats and government ministers arrives in India this August, hosted in association with the Prime Minister's Office and the Government of Uttar Pradesh. Delegates represent organisations spanning finance, energy, infrastructure, automotive, semiconductors, industrial robotics and hospitality, alongside prefectural governments and Japanese universities. This is the kind of access The ADS Advisors was built to create.

About Us / Who We Are

Our Story

The ADS Advisors was founded on a simple observation: India and Japan have no shortage of goodwill between them. What has always been harder to find is the person who picks up the phone, books the room, briefs the delegation and makes sure the right institution is sitting across the table when it matters.

That gap, between diplomatic intent and working execution, is where we operate. We are not a policy think tank and we are not a travel and logistics company. We sit in between, translating high-level bilateral relationships into structured engagements that universities, companies and government bodies can actually act on.

Over the past several years, this has meant coordinating institutional visits, structuring delegation programmes, and building the kind of on-ground relationships that ordinarily take embassies and trade bodies years to establish. Our work spans government-to-government coordination, university and industry engagement, and the detailed protocol work that sits underneath any high-level visit, from the Chief Minister's office to a prefectural governor's delegation.

Our current flagship undertaking is the Indo-Japan Delegation Engagement Programme, convened in association with the Prime Minister's Office and the Government of Uttar Pradesh. It brings together close to 200 Japanese CEOs, bureaucrats and ministers with Indian universities and businesses, building directly on the Memorandum of Understanding signed between Uttar Pradesh and Japan's Yamanashi Prefecture, and on the diplomatic groundwork laid over multiple visits between the two governments.

Why We Exist

Most institutions and businesses only get one kind of access to a foreign delegation: a name on an invitation list, or a seat in the back of a hall. We think that is a waste of a genuinely rare opportunity. Our role is to make sure the institutions and companies we work with are not just present in the room, but positioned to walk out of it with something concrete, a placement pipeline, a research partnership, an investment conversation, a signed commitment.

Our Approach

- Government-first credibility. Every engagement we build sits on a foundation of genuine government backing, not manufactured proximity to power. It is what gets Japanese CEOs and ministers to the table in the first place.
- Precision over scale. We would rather secure the right ten institutions a real conversation than fill a hall with names that go nowhere. Slots, meetings and introductions are curated, not sold in bulk.
- Follow-through as standard. Our work does not end when the delegation leaves the room. Coordination, documentation and facilitation continue well past the event itself, because that is where most of the real value gets realised.
- Discretion and protocol. We operate in rooms where diplomatic sensitivity matters. Confidentiality, protocol and formality are built into how we work, not treated as an afterthought.

For Universities & Institutions

The Opportunity

For most Indian institutions, a direct, structured audience with foreign CEOs and government ministers, in the same room, on the same day, with a clear agenda already in place, is simply not reachable through ordinary channels. Relationships like these are usually built slowly through embassy introductions or years of individual outreach with no guarantee of a real outcome.

The ADS Advisors changes that equation. We give universities and institutions a direct, government-backed platform to present themselves to visiting delegations, structured specifically around the outcomes that matter to academic institutions: placements, exchange, research, and investment.

What We Provide

- Direct Interaction. A dedicated, time-bound slot to present your institution before delegation members, including a formal photo opportunity and an official participation letter.
- Pitch Session. A structured interaction with visiting CEOs and government officials, built around research partnerships, student placements, faculty exchange and investment linkage, not a generic institutional overview.

- Networking & Collateral. Inclusion in the curated delegation networking environment and in official briefing materials, positioning your institution firmly within the wider engagement ecosystem.
- PR & Media Coverage. Press and media coverage of your institution's participation, extending the value of the day beyond the room and into your institution's own public profile.
- Coordination & Follow-Up. End-to-end logistics and protocol support, plus structured facilitation connecting your institution with interested delegates once the event itself is over.

Outcomes We Help You Build Toward

- Student placements. Direct pitches to visiting companies for internships and full-time placement pipelines for your students and graduates.
- Faculty exchange. Two-way arrangements including joint teaching and visiting scholar programmes.
- Research & collaboration. Joint research projects, sponsored labs, technology transfer and CSR-funded academic initiatives.
- Investment linkage. Positioning your institution as a partner of choice for foreign investment in skilling, infrastructure and innovation.

How to Participate

1. Confirm interest — Notify The ADS Advisors of your institution's intent to participate and reserve a slot.
2. Submit your institutional profile — Share your accreditation, rankings, flagship programmes and the specific outcomes you are seeking.
3. Confirm participation — Complete the onboarding process to formally secure your slot.
4. Prepare the pitch — Work with our team to refine your presentation for maximum impact ahead of the event.
5. Engage and follow up — Present before the delegation, and pursue the connections that follow with our continued facilitation support.

For Business & Corporates

The Opportunity

Entering or expanding within the India-Japan corridor usually means navigating two things at once: a talent market you don't yet have relationships in, and a policy and government landscape that takes years to learn from the outside. The ADS Advisors shortens that timeline considerably.

We work with Japanese and international companies looking to engage India, and with Indian businesses looking to build relationships across Japan's corporate and government landscape, giving both sides direct access to the people, institutions and policymakers that matter.

What We Provide

- Talent Pipeline Access. Direct introductions into India's academic and technical talent base, built through our existing relationships with universities and institutions across the country.
- Government-Level Access. Structured engagement with the government bodies, ministries and prefectural offices that shape policy and investment conditions on both sides.
- Institutional Partnerships. Facilitated connections with universities and research institutions for sponsored research, technology transfer and long-term collaboration.
- Coordination & Protocol Support. Full logistics, protocol and delegation support for any engagement, so your team can focus on the relationship rather than the arrangements around it.
